Purpose

- Maximise the opportunity for positive outcomes for people living with disability.
- Reduce or eliminate the need for the use of restrictive interventions across the disability services sector and ensure increased transparency and accountability.
- Ensure that the inherent dignity and individual autonomy, including the freedom to make choices, of people with disability are respected.
- This policy and supporting documentation is complementary to, and does not override or replace, the requirements of the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission.

Mandatory Requirements

- This is a statewide policy and must not be re-interpreted so that subordinate policies exist. Should discrete operational differences exist, these should be expressed in the form of an operating procedure or protocol.
- Failure to comply with this policy, without providing a good reason for doing so, may lead to disciplinary action.
- Disciplinary action in this context may be a Penalty under the Tasmanian Disability Services Act 2011 or may constitute a breach of NDIS registration.

This policy must be read in conjunction with the Tasmanian Disability Services Act 2011

- The Tasmanian Disability Services Act 2011 provides the legislative basis for the provision of specialist disability services.
- Regulation of Restrictive Interventions is outlined in Part 6 of the Tasmanian Disability Services Act 2011.

This policy must also be read in conjunction with the National Disability Insurance Scheme Act 2013 and all relevant NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission rules, guidelines and policies.

- Providers who register with the NDIS Commission must meet the NDIS Practice Standards, including requirements for quality and safeguarding of the services and supports they deliver.

Roles and Responsibilities/Delegations

Disability service providers and funded private persons must:

- Communicate to all staff that:
  - Restrictive interventions can be used as long as they have been authorised under sections 37 or 42 of the Tasmanian Disability Services Act 2011.
  - An unauthorised Restrictive Intervention is allowed to be used if the action is to prevent harm, is the least restrictive option and the Senior Practitioner is notified.
- At all times follow and comply with common law known as 'duty of care' to protect the person with disability or others from harm.

  - The primary functions of the Senior Practitioner, including the authorisation and monitoring of restrictive practices in NDIS and/or DCS funded services.

Risk Implications

- Non-compliance with this policy will result in a breach under the Tasmanian Disability Services Act 2011 and may breach NDIS registration requirements.
- Interests of all parties are not being maintained and any potential risks to those interests are not being mitigated.

Training

- Disability service providers or a funded private person are to ensure that all staff, whether employees or volunteers are appropriately qualified and skilled and where appropriate, credentialed and registered.
- All staff, whether employees or volunteers are to be provided with adequate support, training, debriefing and directions to enable them to effectively perform their duties.
